Edward Moss, Chair of Cahill's Antitrust Litigation practice group and Co-Chair of the Commercial Litigation practice group, is an experienced and business-minded trial lawyer who represents companies and individuals in a wide range of high-stakes commercial litigation matters, with a focus on securities, antitrust, and merger-and-acquisition-related lawsuits. He has practiced, and tried cases, in courts throughout the country.

He represents an array of clients, including financial institutions, private-equity firms, airlines, healthcare and pharmaceutical companies, technology providers, and professional sports franchises. He works diligently to provide his clients with practical advice and favorable results under challenging circumstances. Edward also maintains an active pro bono docket, including having tried three pro bono cases.

Edward was recognized as a 2023 General Litigation Trailblazer by The National Law Journal and in 2022 as one of The American Lawyer's Litigators of the Week for his precedent-setting win defending Credit Suisse in a foreign exchange markets class action following an eight-day jury trial in the SDNY. Benchmark Litigation has named Edward as a "Future Star," and he was named to the 40 & Under Hot List in Antitrust, General Commercial, and Securities Litigation. Edward has also been recognized by Legal 500 US for his work in antitrust, financial services litigation and general commercial litigation and is listed in Lawdragon's 500 Leading Litigators in America guide. Edward currently serves as Co-Chair of Cahill's Professional Development Committee.
